

Vision Statement

The vision of this group is to help family members and friends who has lost someone to drugs and alcohol. And also help those who are suffering with their own addiction and to get them the help they deserve. Through group meetings, events, social media and fellowship with one another, we will get the message out that there is a place to go to find peace of mind, love and serenity and freedom from drug and alcohol abuse. It is our hope that through fellowshiping with one another that we can come to terms with the hurt and anger that has been bottled up inside us, and learn to live life on life's terms and find this place as a place to be rid of these feelings and emotions, and find peace and comfort. This is our passion and vision to be able to take this message everywhere.

If you have a problem with drugs or alcohol and need or want help please call us. If you are a family member of someone who has a substance abuse problem and you would like to set-up an intervention with them please call us. We can do one or arrange for one to be done at a treatment center. We have done many interventions and will be willing to talk to anyone if they are not drunk or high at that time. Some of our staff are recovering addicts and alcoholics and can talk to those who are suffering from the DISEASE, yes, it is a disease, and we can relate to those who are still suffering like no one else can. It is our hope that they will accept treatment and find the freedom we have. Please call the number listed here and we will discuss a time and place to meet. We are just here to help people get better and find freedom from all aspects of this disease.

This is the reason this group got started

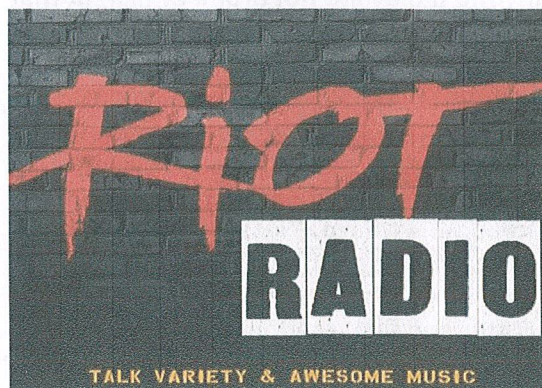

This is Jack Andrew Wilcox, lived in Dayton Ohio, a father of two girls, 12 and 14 at the time of his heroin overdose and death. He was a hard worker and like most users of drugs a hard user also. Myself and his sister are devoted to bring people together that have lost someone to drugs and alcohol. It is our hope that people will find this place as a place of hope and comfort. Come and join us and find that peace we all deserve.
